

Learnings from being a reviewer

Raja Kantheti

October 23, 2024

- I was able too see my inadequacies in writing and presenting styles.
- I was able to see the importance of being clear and concise in writing.
- Iw as able to see how articulation can change the way a sentence is heard.
- I was able to see how much of the work goes into writing a survey paper.

I was also able to find the importance of being productive and punctual about meeting deadlines. Particularly, after seeing my reveiw I had more insight into what I can do to improve the story line of the paper.

It also made me realize how I devaited from the main story line in the chase of making the paper technnically more sound. I am sure I would be more conscious about this in future. Overall it has been a great learning experience. I am confident that second draft will be alot better than my first draft in terms of story.